The Cremation Process:

The Human body burns with the casket, container, or other materials in the cremation chamber. Some bone fragments are not combustible at the incineration temperature and, as a result in the cremation chamber. During the cremation, the contents of the chamber may be moved to facilitate incineration. The chamber is composed of ceramic or other material which disintegrates slightly during each cremation and the product of that disintegration is commingled with the cremated remains. Nearly all of the contents of the cremation chamber, consisting of the cremated remains that disintegration chamber material, and small amounts of residue from previous cremations, are removed together and crushed, pulverized, or ground to facilitate inurnment. Some residue remains in the cracks and uneven places of the chamber. Periodically, the accumulation of this residue is removed and scattered at sea in accordance with State Laws. The acknowledgement shall be filed and retained, for at least five years, by the person who disposes of the remains. Due to the nature of the cremation process, any personal possessions or valuable materials such as dental gold or silver, or jewelry (as well as and body prostheses or dental bridgework) that are left with the Decedent and are not removed from the casket or cremation container prior to cremation may be destroyed and become non-recoverable, or if not destroyed, they will be handled by the Crematory in accordance with the instructions on the authorization. If you desire to save such items, the Authorizing Agent must make arrangements to remove any such possessions or valuables prior to cremation. After the cremated remains are removed from the cremation chamber, all non-combustible materials (insofar as possible), such as dental bridgework, body prostheses, and materials from the casket or containers such as hinges, latches, etc., will be separated and removed from the human bone fragments by visible or magnetic selection. Unless specifically requested to return such items in writing, the Crematory is authorized to dispose of these materials with similar materials from other cremation in a non-recoverable manner, so that only the human bone fragments will remain. There may be small non-combustible material the operator may not visibly see and be placed in the urn with the human bone fragments. When the cremated remains are removed from the cremation chamber, the skeletal remains often contain recognizable bone fragment. After the bone fragments have been separated from the other material, they will be mechanically processed (pulverized), which includes crushing particles unrecognizable as human remains, prior to placement into the designated container.
